Safety On Autopilot

Passengers often ignore pre-flight safety demonstrations, perceiving them as repetitive or boring, and as a result, miss crucial safety information, which can create potential risks in the event of an emergency.

Our Partner

We partnered with McDonald's as there is a location in pretty much every airport. Airports are also one of the only places where people have to eat fast food. McDonalds has an extremely strong points system for customers that already provides the opportunity to redeem for free food. Partnering with McDonald's allows us to use this system to positively influence attention to airplane safety, allowing travellers to enjoy a delicious treat while staying safe and engaged.

Score for Snacks!

In this partnership, QR codes are dispersed for travelers to take a quiz on the airplane safety brief before takeoff. Depending on their score, travelers can then redeem points they gained from correct questions in the app for rewards!

How It Works

Before every flight, passengers will have the option to take a Pre-Flight Safety Quiz using a QR code. Each quiz is worth 10 points and for every 10 points received, a McDonalds menu reward is gifted. These rewards are put on the McDonalds app that passengers are able to use at any airport. Passengers can either use their rewards one by one or save them.

This quiz not only allows passengers to save money at McDonalds but it also allows them to retain the important safety instructions on aircrafts.

Why Our Solution Soars

Our interactive QR-code quiz works by turning a passive task into an engaging challenge, motivating passengers to pay attention. Rewarding only perfect scores ensures information is retained, while integration with the reward system reinforces brand engagement. By making safety fun and rewarding, we show that passenger safety is our top priority.

THANK YOU!
